

I am asking that the FCC not implement any proposal that would lessen Indiana's Telephone Privacy law protections. I was getting an average of five calls per day, even on weekends. It was getting to the point that at night we were hating to hear the phone ring. There were a few times that we got so many calls we took the phone off hook. After signing up with Indiana's Telephone Privacy, we now only get about 2 calls per week. It has made our days and nights much more enjoyable with out having to deal with these unsolicited telephone calls. The Indiana's law is working, do not preempt this law by adopting a national standard that would be anything less.
